

Knowing how to choose trustworthy evidence

Every day we hear claims from news, marketing campaigns, and policy propositions.

But how do we work out what palliative care information is correct, trustworthy and reliable?

CHECK IF THE INFORMATION OR CLAIM IS:

Based on relevant, reliable and valid scientific studies

Reviewed by experts in the field

Linked to credible government, education and professional sources

Up-to-date

Written by, or came from, experts in the field

Check if authors have the relevant degree, affiliation and publications
